Policies

G4S is committed to operating to the highest levels of business ethics throughout its operations. In this section we provide an overview of the key group policies, details of how they are implemented and an overview of how we monitor compliance.

p4

Employees

As the second largest private employer in the world, G4S understands that people are its most important asset. This section provides an overview of our commitment to employee engagement and the welfare of our employees and how we are investing in the workforce for the future.

Environment

G4S recognises that its business activities have both a direct and indirect impact on the natural environment. In this report we outline our policy on these issues, provide data on the group's current carbon footprint and outline some of the projects underway to reduce our impact on the environment.

p16

Communities

G4S encourages its colleagues around the world to invest time and energy in local projects in the communities in which they live and work. Here we give some examples of the many projects supported by G4S around the world.

G4S RECOGNISES ITS ETHICAL RESPONSIBILITIES TOWARDS ITS EMPLOYEES, CUSTOMERS, INVESTORS, LOCAL COMMUNITIES AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS.

Securing Your World

As a major global organisation with operations in over 110 countries and as the world's second largest private employer, G4S plays a significant role in the lives of hundreds of thousands of people – both directly through employment and our relationships with customers and suppliers, and indirectly through our involvement in the communities in which our employees live and work.

At the heart of our strategy is the safety and security of our customers, their assets and the general public, so in our everyday business we are constantly contributing to a safer society.

In this, our first corporate responsibility report, we are proud to explain more about the action we are taking to ensure that any impact we have on people and communities is positive and that we are contributing to a sustainable future for our business and everyone who is connected to it.

In business, one of the fundamental elements of sustainability is success and our corporate responsibility strategy supports that principle by:

- > setting group-wide standards and policies and ensuring that these principles are enforced
- > investing in and engaging with our global workforce
- > minimising our impact on the environment
- > contributing positively to the wider community

It would be fair to say that G4S is in the early stages of its journey regarding corporate responsibility, but we are very proud of the work that we have done so far and pleased that we now have a solid foundation on which we can develop further for the future.

The Shape of the Organisation

Employees by Region

At the end of 2008, the total workforce had increased to around 585,000 in line with growth in the business. This has increased from 530,000 in 2007. In people terms, the largest geographic region in G4S is NAMESA (North Africa, Middle East and Southern Asia) with over 200,000 employees.

Employees by Role

G4S employs more than 44,000 supervisory and managerial employees globally. The level of managerial and supervisory employees varies across the different regions and this is due to different geographic spread and service density as well as the degree to which technology is used as part of the customer solution.

Workforce Stability

In terms of stability in the workforce, over 66% of our employees have more than one year's service even though the employee numbers increased during the year. The annualised labour turnover rate is 27.7%.

Policies

Standards of Business Ethics

G4S is committed to operating to the highest levels of business ethics throughout its operations.

We have an extensive business ethics policy which provides the backbone to our culture and practice in this area, describing the group's core standards in relation to different audiences such as communities, business partners, regulators and our employees. Thus the policy covers a wide range of areas including:

- > human rights
- > bribery & corruption
- > compliance with the law
- > accounting standards
- > ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work
- > health & safety
- > whistleblowing & complaints

The policy is reviewed regularly to ensure it continues to reflect our business model and areas of operation. To demonstrate its importance within G4S, each year the CEO asks all senior managers and executives around the group to reaffirm their personal commitment to this key policy.

All new managers receive the business ethics policy and are made aware of its importance to the group – they also sign up to its principles on an annual basis.

Monitoring compliance with G4S's business ethics policy around the group

In order to maintain the high ethical standards defined in the G4S business ethics policy, compliance is monitored on a regular basis using information reported via various sources including:

- > global whistleblowing facility
- > internal/external audit
- > ongoing management reporting

Internal Audit

Internal Audit is one of the cornerstones of ensuring high standards of social as well as financial and corporate responsibility by monitoring business compliance throughout the group.

In line with the growth and increasing sophistication of the G4S global business, the group's internal audit resource has been increased over recent years. For 2009 the headcount will be further increased to a total of 14 full time staff, based strategically at different locations around the world.

Alongside this corporate internal audit function, G4S has other internal and compliance auditors based in its regions and some of its larger businesses. These auditors total well in excess of 100.

The risk-based, three year group audit plan ensures that all businesses across over 110 countries, including those in small and remote locations, receive at least one visit during the three year audit cycle.

Whilst ethical compliance has many facets, internal audit is the means to monitor many of these within the general course of a standard controls audit i.e. standards of business practice, corporate governance and employee relations. Specific reviews of financial data provide further assurance on business practices.

The businesses' Risk Assessments and Controls Self Evaluation analysis is reviewed closely and can also indicate weaknesses or issues that need to be addressed.

This monitoring activity helps to ensure that both managers and employees have a clear understanding of the group's ethical standards of operation and the expectations of our stakeholders. Management are also given assurance on their compliance with group standards and any remedial action to be taken is identified.

The chart below shows the internal audit activity during the last two years in terms of assignments completed.

NO. OF AUDITS AND REVIEWS

All issues encountered, whether classified as control related, financial or ethical, are reported to local and regional management. Serious issues are escalated to the group executive management team and the Audit Committee.

Policies continued

The chart below shows the number of issues raised in relation to business practice standards, corporate governance and employee relations over the last two years.

NO. OF ISSUES RAISED

Through a thorough follow-up process, we make sure that items are addressed and resolved in a timely manner. Currently 4% of the total number of issues raised during 2007 and 2008 are classified as significant, with remedial action to be confirmed during 2009.

Whistleblowing

The G4S policy is that all businesses must provide employees with a facility to report concerns locally to a senior manager. Such concerns could include fraud, misrepresentation, theft, harassment, discrimination or non-compliance with regulations, legislation, policies or procedures.

Where employees have concerns about behaviour which is contrary to the group standards they are advised to raise their concerns, anonymously if they so wish, with their local human resources or finance director in the first instance.

Employees can also report serious concerns at a corporate level through the group whistleblowing mechanism which consists of a central telephone hotline and email facility.

All concerns reported via the whistleblowing facility or received through other means are reviewed directly by the Head of Internal Audit. These are investigated and the appropriate action taken.

In addition to the group whistleblowing reporting hot line, there are also hot lines in some of our major business units, including G4S Care & Justice Services UK and G4S Wackenhut in the USA.

The chart below shows an analysis of the whistleblowing concerns raised at group level over the last two years.

NO. OF WHISTLEBLOWING CONCERNS RECEIVED

¹ which could include HR practices, employee conduct, conflicts of interest, harassment & discrimination

² which could include theft, fraud, financial misreporting, misuse of company assets, non-compliance with policies and procedures etc

A total of 32 issues were raised in 2008 (2007 – 24 issues). There are five open issues that arose in 2008 which are being investigated or where resolution is pending. All issues from 2007 have been closed.

When we do find evidence of unethical conduct, disciplinary action is taken. Disciplinary actions have ranged from formal reprimand to termination of employment.

Conclusion

At G4S, we believe that by setting ourselves high standards of business ethics, ensuring that managers understand their role in delivering them and by strictly monitoring compliance through a number of methods, we can be sure that our high ethical standards of operation are maintained across the group.

EMPLOYEES WORLDWIDE

HR Aims & Standards

G4S has defined a number of core standards and processes to ensure that employees are treated with respect, fairness and dignity at work in line with the G4S values. These standards and processes cover issues such as:

- > handling of disciplinary matters and grievances
- > performance appraisals
- > identification of training needs
- > recruitment and selection processes
- > health and safety
- > employee representation and communication

The HR standards and processes not only enable G4S to ensure that individual employees are treated fairly and consistently, but they also form the bedrock on which strategic organisational issues are founded such as talent and succession management, employee engagement, leadership development and organisational capability building.

Local line and HR managers are responsible for the implementation and maintenance of the standards and this is covered in training for managers.

Ethical Employment Goals

Our business ethics policy sets out the group's core standards in relation to our employees, for example by supporting the principles of international standards such as the ILO Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work. With significant G4S operations in many developing markets, real commitment to these international standards is essential.

Beyond this, we believe it is important to tailor these international norms and reflect what matters most to G4S employees in their unique working environment. Thus we have simplified and strengthened our stance on the most critical ethical employment issues and are committed to the following standards:

- > We never employ children or allow any form of forced labour
- > We always consider our employees' physical and mental wellbeing, especially in harsh or hostile environments
- > We work to change markets in which business is awarded at the expense of employee terms & conditions
- > We respect employees' need for time away from work, while acknowledging that many want to maximise their income
- > We boost long-term job security by creating new solutions to meet our customers' business needs
- > We strive for diversity in our workforce to draw on all available talents
- > We value our employees as unique individuals while respecting and listening to their collective voice
- > We help employees develop so that they can perform well every day and take advantage of opportunities to progress in G4S

Employees

Diversity & Inclusion

We strive for diversity in our workforce to draw on all available talents

The size and shape of G4S is constantly changing as the business continues to grow, entering new countries and developing new service lines. Five years ago we employed 365,000 people – now we have more than 585,000 employees in more than 110 countries.

One in three of our employees works in North Africa and the Middle East, one in six in Africa and one in eleven in Latin America. Our employees speak over 50 different national languages.

Diversity is already a source of strength for the group and one that gives us a key competitive advantage. With such a diverse workforce, we are better placed to understand the needs of our customers and identify opportunities for innovation and improvement.

Our employees deliver the service that our customers rely on to keep them and their assets safe and secure. Our success will depend on our ability to attract and retain talented people so that we have the resources to support the challenges of our diverse customers and our continued business growth.

We are building an inclusive working environment in which the best people can thrive and reach their full potential regardless of race, sex, religion or beliefs, disability, marital or civil partnership status, age, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression.

The chart below shows the ratio of male to female employees across the organisation.

Our policies and practices are created to ensure that local legislation is adhered to and, in the event that none exists, provide minimum standards to which all businesses must comply. Confidential telephone helpline services are available for employees to raise any concerns they have.

As a security solutions company with a clear orientation towards traditionally male-dominated occupations, G4S faces challenges in driving a diversity and inclusion agenda. We also have to think globally but act locally, respecting the cultural differences across the countries in which we operate. The group HR director takes overall responsibility for embracing these challenges by

- > identifying, sharing and developing best practice in diversity and inclusion across the businesses
- > supporting businesses in improving the diversity of their management teams
- > fostering an inclusive work environment

Much proactive work on diversity and inclusion is already underway:

- > In the UK, work on diversity-specific areas such as gender and ethnicity is part of normal business practice
- > In the US we are required to provide detailed information of the composition of our workforce to the US Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and US Department of Labor Office and Federal Contract Compliance Program
- > Where appropriate, our US businesses have an Affirmative Action Plan which is reviewed regularly by members of the senior management team
- > In South Africa, where legislation promotes diversity and inclusion through skills development and employment equity, we demonstrate and measure our commitment to Black Economic Empowerment Codes in a number of ways. For example, at Mangaung Correctional Centre, the percentage procurement spend on black enterprises, the investment in skills development and the levels of black management control are all monitored closely to help ensure the workforce is truly representative of the local community and small businesses are well supported. The commitment of the management team to diversity and to developing an inclusive culture at Mangaung has paid off in a number of ways. 83% of all employees are black and 80% of all promotions are filled by internal candidates

In other countries there are many great practices which have helped to create a workplace that is perceived as fair and inclusive.

Our aim is to reflect the communities in which we operate at all levels of the organisation. We recognise that achieving this will take time in an organisation of our size and complexity, but we are confident that we are making progress.

Developing Talent

Our approach to learning and development is a key element of the G4S “Best People” value. We understand that in order to deliver the group strategy it is essential that we invest in developing the talent within the organisation as well as attracting new people who can bring necessary expertise into the group.

Our talent management programme focuses on identifying the key capabilities of the senior population of leaders across the organisation and understanding our strengths in addition to identifying any gaps that we may have in capability or expertise. We can then develop action plans to maximise the strengths and close the gaps through internal moves, external recruitment or targeted development activity. Overall, our intent is that our best talent is deployed where the best impact and highest value can be achieved.

G4S has, for several years, invested in leadership development to enhance the skills of leaders who are seen as having considerable potential to progress further. To date, more than 70 leaders have participated in G4S’s award-winning Leadership Programme. The aim of the programme is to ensure that the participants have both the commercial and personal skills to contribute to the development and implementation of the strategy. The programme is continually evolving to ensure that it is aligned to the capability requirements of the organisation.

In addition, businesses around the world have invested in developing management capability to assist in creating a pipeline of talent moving through the organisation.

It is also vital that all employees have access to development opportunities to support their career progression. The start point for this is a performance management discussion with their manager which is currently being implemented across the group.

Overall, talent management for G4S is about ensuring that our investment in talent and development is focused in areas which will not only enhance the skills and capabilities of our employees at all levels, helping them to progress, but will also augment the performance of the group.

Case Study:

Developing Talent – Thomas Pilz

Thomas Pilz joined the group in January 2003 as a Management Trainee in our former German business, on a locally-organised scheme to attract talented young graduates into the organisation.

After spending twelve months working in the various parts of the business, getting to know the organisation, he was given his first management role, working as a Project Manager responsible for the successful post-merger integration of the cash operations of Group 4 Falck and Securicor in Germany.

During this time Thomas won a place on the brand new global G4S "Leadership Programme", which really opened his eyes to the sheer scale of the group, and gave him the opportunity to work and learn alongside colleagues from the USA, Belgium, Hong Kong, India, Denmark, the UK, Barbados and Norway.

Thomas has this to say about the Programme: "It has given me great exposure to the senior management across the whole of G4S, and created a wonderful learning environment, which was a very special combination of formal academic inputs, case studies and informal yet deep conversations with colleagues in our different businesses".

Whilst he was on the Programme, Thomas visited G4S operations in the UK, the USA, Hong Kong, Macau, South Africa and Austria, and all of this international exposure certainly paid off as in May 2006 he was appointed to the position of Control Centre Manager for the UK Electronic Monitoring business, responsible for running the monitoring centre in Manchester, England.

Since then Thomas' career has taken another step forward, as in March 2008 he became the International Retail Manager, Cash Solutions, responsible for the international launch of the new service line – "Cash360" – a solution to help retailers across the world manage their cash more efficiently.

UNION AGREEMENTS

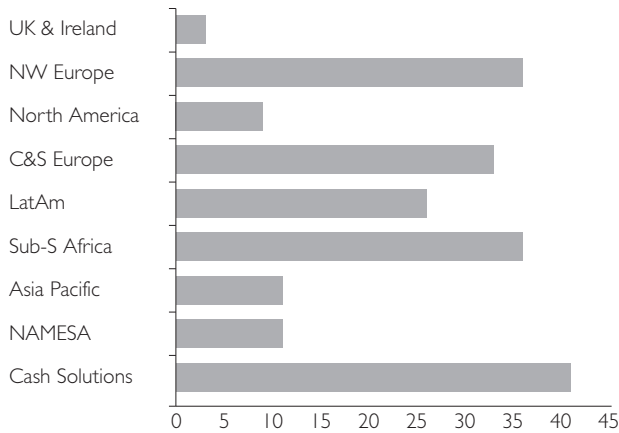

Employee Engagement

Freedom of Association

We value our employees as unique individuals while respecting and listening to their collective voice.

G4S believes it is essential to our continued success that we actively seek and consider the views of our workforce – whether directly as individual employees or via their chosen representatives. We have a history of active, constructive social dialogue with unions around the world, many relationships going back decades, and can clearly demonstrate our long-standing commitment to and experience of freedom of association and collective bargaining. Thus, today, there are over 200 union agreements across the group.

RECOGNISED UNIONS

Similarly, the collective agreement coverage across G4S is very significant, even in comparison with other, traditional, labour-intensive industries, and the graph below shows the degree to which our workforce is currently covered by the terms of a collective agreement.

COLLECTIVE AGREEMENT COVERAGE

Employees continued

The nature of union relationships differ according to local context and culture, but our support for constructive dialogue is demonstrated in the following case study from Argentina

Case Study: Social Dialogue – Argentina

Argentina has a long history of social dialogue and company/union interfaces vary according to segment, geography and even customer. Fluent and close relationships are therefore “a must” for G4S in Argentina, and we have developed constructive, albeit robust, relationships with all the local unions. At the end of 2008, almost 4,000 employees were covered by the terms of a collective agreement, representing 97% of the total workforce. In fact the lowest pay rate in G4S Argentina is already 50% above the minimum wage and 20% above the industry average. So with low employee turnover too, the company is rightly proud to be leading the way among employers in the industry and beyond.

START OF GLOBAL EMPLOYEE
SURVEYGlobal Social Dialogue

In 2008, G4S entered into an Ethical Employment Partnership with UNI, the global union federation, which will drive improvements in employment standards across the security industry while helping to ensure that employee and union rights are respected throughout the group.

The unique geographic footprint of G4S – where two thirds of our employees are in developing markets – and the complexity arising from different labour relations contexts around the world, mean that a global framework is appropriate and helpful. The agreement reached with UNI will help us work together to drive through improvements in industry standards and employment conditions and have a positive impact on employees, their families and their communities.

Employee Feedback

In 2008 G4S decided that, to fully understand and improve employee engagement across the group, all countries should undertake an employee survey at least once every two years. Across the world, our businesses are therefore currently undertaking the first global employee survey of its kind – a massive undertaking in such a diverse business, where most employees are remote workers and a technical solution is not realistic in many markets.

Despite these challenges, we believe that employee engagement is a key performance indicator for our business and that seeking and acting on employees' views will enable us to improve loyalty and motivation, with consequent enhancement of service and performance.

Terms of Employment

We work to change markets in which business is awarded at the expense of employee terms & conditions.

We respect employees' need for time away from work, while acknowledging that many want to maximise their income.

We boost long-term job security by creating new solutions to meet our customers' business needs.

Strong competition in the industry and weak enforcement in many markets have often driven less ethical employers to routinely cut costs at the expense of their employees' terms & conditions and, while G4S must remain competitive in its chosen markets, our strategy is to change these markets by raising the professionalism and reputation of the industry as a whole.

The Ethical Employment Partnership agreed with UNI in 2008 is a key element of this strategy and we have agreed a phased roll-out which will help us to monitor progress in achieving our shared aims, while protecting the long-term sustainability of our business.

Across the group, our employees are paid at least as favourably as the terms established by national legislation, collective agreements or industry standards. In more than half of our businesses, even the lowest paid employee receives more than 10% above the local minimum wage. In 23% of our businesses, the lowest paid employee is paid at least 50% above any such established rate.

We will continue to work with governments, customers and union partners to improve conditions for employees wherever the market and economy allows, and to ensure that we retain our position as the premium employer in the industry.

Health & Safety

We always consider our employees' physical and mental wellbeing, especially in harsh or hostile environments.

We are in the business of managing risk, whether that is people, property or possessions. The business is challenging and, in some parts of the world, dangerous. We work in hostile environments, clearing mines, providing armed escorts for convoys and dealing with the fallout from terrorist attacks. In the cash solutions markets we are often a target for attack ourselves. We fully recognise the dangers these challenges present and work extremely hard to ensure that our employees have appropriate training, equipment and back up support to enable them to remove or significantly reduce the risks they encounter at work.

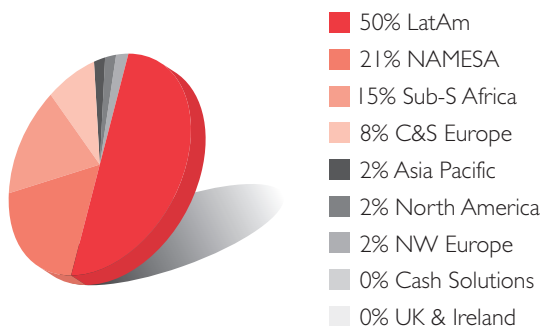

In 2008, 3,348 (0.57% of the workforce) were injured as a direct result of work-related incidents.

% OF SERIOUS WORK RELATED INCIDENTS

Regrettably 53 (0.0095% of the workforce) employees died as a direct result of attacks on our staff or the assets that they were protecting.

% OF ATTACK-RELATED DEATHS

We continue to work with the police authorities, trade unions and other security companies to bring those who have caused injury or harm to our people to justice and to do all we can to protect our people whilst carrying out their work.

Employee Welfare & Support

The welfare of employees is of paramount importance to G4S and all our businesses aim to ensure that employees are supported during difficult times. As the group operates in many countries that are frequently afflicted by natural disasters and occasionally by violence arising from crime or political unrest, our employees are on occasion subjected to trauma or particular financial hardship.

Employees are offered counselling and support when they have been subjected to incidents at work which have caused trauma or distress. The G4S Employees' Trust is available to make grants to employees to ease financial hardship in a variety of situations.

For example, in early 2008 as a result of the post-election violence in Kenya, over 60 employees were left without homes when they were burnt down during the violence. The local company quickly put in place a programme of support and assistance for those affected which included counselling for those suffering from post-traumatic stress. Financial assistance from the G4S Employees' Trust Fund helped these employees to rebuild their homes and bring some normality back into their lives.

During 2008, the Employees Trust Fund made grants totalling over £250,000 to over 130 employees who have suffered particular financial hardship. 80% of these employees were based in our new markets businesses.

Health & Safety – G4S Secure Solutions, UK & Ireland

Six G4S UK businesses have been presented with the ultimate award for their impeccable health and safety standards. Two prison facilities (HMP Wolds & HMP Altcourse), Court Services, GCHQ, Manchester Magistrates Court and Nuffield Orthopaedic Centre were recognised with Swords of Honour from the British Safety Council.

This means these businesses are among the top 40 performing companies in the world to have achieved this accolade in 2008.

David Taylor-Smith, Chief Executive Officer of G4S Secure Solutions, UK & Ireland, said: "Winning these awards recognises the dedication and commitment of our people to ensure a consistent level of health and safety excellence."

A message of congratulations was also sent by Prime Minister Gordon Brown. He said: "I send my congratulations to all of those organisations being presented with a Sword of Honour by the British Safety Council. These awards recognise the crucial success that they and their employees have achieved in their pursuit of excellence in the management of health, safety and environmental matters."

Environment

G4S recognises that its business activities have both a direct and indirect impact on the natural environment and is committed to managing these impacts in a responsible manner

Environmental Policy

The G4S environmental policy outlines the key commitments from G4S to protect and preserve the environment for future generations.

Environmental Regulations & Legislation

We will comply with all relevant legislation, commercial requirements and codes of conduct regarding the impact of our business on the environment.

Operations & Business Practices

- > we will continually review our impact on the environment and introduce business processes to reduce our carbon footprint and actively target carbon output reductions
- > we will systematically measure the carbon footprint of the group
- > we will establish performance indicators which will enable us to set targets and track our progress
- > we will implement processes for reducing carbon emissions across the organisation including areas such as:
 - fuel consumption
 - energy consumption
 - water usage
- > we will make use of environmentally-friendly products wherever possible
- > we will seek to reduce waste and recycle materials where possible and where the means to recycle materials exist
- > we will seek to use modern communications techniques to reduce the need for air travel

Awareness & Communication

Communicating with key stakeholder groups will be a key element of our Climate Action Programme. It will ensure that everyone is aware of their role in contributing to protecting and preserving the environment in which we live and work and it will enable us to implement carbon reduction initiatives successfully.

- > we will encourage and enable staff to make a positive contribution to improving the environment
- > we will engage with our customers and suppliers on environmental initiatives
- > we will communicate the progress of the Climate Action Programme to all of our stakeholders in an open and transparent manner

Governance

G4S has established a Climate Action Board which is chaired by Richard Hawkins, Group Security Director. The Climate Action Board meets monthly to review progress of the Climate Action Programme and to drive the implementation of key elements of the programme.

The Climate Action Board reports directly to the group chief executive and provides a written progress update to the group management board on a quarterly basis.

Environmental co-ordinators have been appointed from across the group's operations to measure the group-wide carbon footprint and to implement operational measures to reduce carbon emissions. The environmental co-ordinators report directly to the Climate Action Board.

G4S Carbon Footprint 2007

In 2008, G4S began its Climate Action Programme by measuring our 2007 carbon footprint globally across the organisation. Focusing initially on a representative sample of the group – our G4S cash solutions businesses and our seven largest secure solutions businesses (our so-called “trailblazers”), we determined that during 2007 these G4S operations emitted approximately 203,000 tonnes of CO₂e into the atmosphere. Of this, 96,000 tonnes related to our cash solutions businesses for which we have previously reported carbon emissions in 2008.

The 2007 carbon footprint exercise was conducted largely as a test of our ability to identify and accurately measure our carbon emissions in a limited number of businesses.

This enabled us to ensure that we used reliable measurement systems for our 2008 group-wide analysis.

2007 Trailblazer coverage included:

Cash Solutions: Belgium, Canada, Czech Republic, Finland, G4SI, Hungary, Ireland, Netherlands, Poland, Sweden, UK

Secure Solutions: Malaysia, India, Netherlands, South Africa, Greece, UK, USA

G4S Carbon Footprint 2008

With the completion of our 2007 “trailblazer” carbon footprint we were determined to obtain a more complete and detailed picture of our carbon emissions in 2008.

In partnership with a leading environmental consultancy, and using WBCSD and WRI GHG protocols, we undertook a measurement of our scope 1 and 2 carbon emissions (G4S occupied buildings over which we have operational control, our vehicle fleet, and employee business air travel).

The businesses measured by our 2008 carbon footprint analysis represent 503,000 employees and approximately 22,000 vehicles across 37 countries worldwide – approximately 82% of the group’s operations.

Due to the operational challenges of measuring businesses either acquired or undergoing integration during the period, these operations were excluded from the measurement of our 2008 carbon footprint. For 2008 G4S Care & Justice Services is therefore excluded, but it will complete its carbon footprint analysis in 2009.

The G4S 2008 estimated carbon footprint equates to some 450,000 tonnes of CO₂e. Through operational year on year growth we expect that our direct carbon footprint will grow proportionately. Therefore we have established a G4S average measurement of 90 tonnes CO₂e per £1m of revenue.

2008 coverage included:

Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, Greece, G4SI, Hong Kong, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Israel, Kenya, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Malaysia, Poland, Romania, Saudi, Slovakia, South Africa, Sweden, Taiwan, Thailand, Turkey, United Arab Emirates, UK, USA

Environment continued

We are implementing a number of initiatives designed to reduce our impact on the environment

Case Study:

Reducing Vehicle Emissions

A major contributing factor in G4S's carbon footprint is the CO₂ emissions from our vehicle fleet. As part of our Climate Action Programme, we have implemented a number of initiatives to reduce vehicle emissions.

During 2008, G4S Finland piloted Sensor; a driving usage and behaviour-monitoring system at one of its major branches. The pilot aimed to improve control over driving behaviour; lowering fuel consumption and decreasing the number of vehicle accidents.

Vehicles equipped with the Sensor system are monitored in real time and the system allows management to assess and review their staff's driving standards – praising good behaviour and redressing bad driving. The introduction of Sensor enabled G4S Finland to reduce its fuel consumption by 8.5% during 2008 and achieve a reduction of 27% in the number of at-fault vehicle accidents.

G4S Belgium, has implemented a new company car policy, capping the CO₂ emissions to a maximum of 175g/km and introducing financial incentives of up to €750 to encourage employees to select vehicles with lower CO₂ emission values, further promoting our Climate Action Programme and persuading our employees to 'go green'.

The new policy in Belgium has been one of several campaigns adopted by the group to promote environmental awareness, including the benefits and simple techniques of eco-driving, among our employees. Through posters, magazine articles, and attention grabbing competitions, G4S has attempted to focus the minds of its employees to think about climate action and reducing their carbon emissions both at work and at home.

Carbon Reduction Measures

We recognise that a major factor in our carbon footprint comes from our vehicle fleet, due in part to the large and heavier cash transportation vehicles which make up around 60% of our total fleet. Therefore, it is here that we are directing many of our programmes to reduce carbon emissions; from eco-driving training for our operational vehicle and company car drivers, and a project to monitor via satellite driver behaviour in Finland, to exploring alternative fuel sources such as a gas (GNC/GNV) powered vehicle fleet in G4S Bolivia, and Accuread's low emission vehicle fleet in the UK.

Over 20% of our carbon footprint is generated by energy and fuel usage at our buildings and offices. A number of programmes are underway across the globe to tackle our energy efficiency in these areas such as:

- > employee awareness programmes such as "The Big Think" encouraging employees to think about their impact on the environment and the actions they can take to reduce energy consumption and carbon emissions
- > energy reduction measures such as installing smart meters, replacing old style light bulbs with more efficient designs, and changes in air conditioning and heating patterns
- > reducing wastage, and wherever possible, increasing recycling

Over the course of 2009/10 the Climate Action Programme network of environmental co-ordinators will be identifying and implementing further opportunities for reducing our carbon emissions and sharing best practice wherever applicable.

Case Study: UK Recycling Project

At the beginning of 2008, G4S Cash Solutions UK recycled just 6% of its waste, which was not in line with the commitments set out by the UK CSR and Environment Policy. With over 50 properties throughout the UK, it was a huge challenge to rapidly improve waste management.

A recycling initiative was overseen by the full time CSR Co-ordinator and delivered by CSR Champions at each of G4S Cash Solutions UK's properties.

- > A new waste contractor was sought who was able to recycle all key waste streams
- > Introduced colour coded recycling bins throughout the estate
- > Ran an extensive awareness campaign with articles in the employee magazine, presentations on the in-house TV system, as well as posters to encourage waste reduction and recycling
- > Provided monthly management information, including league tables and a breakdown of performance across all properties

G4S Cash Solutions UK has increased its recycling rate to 24% by December 2008, which helped divert 41 tonnes of waste from landfill in that month alone.

G4S looks to significantly reduce the amount of waste it produces and increase the amount it recycles through 2009 and beyond.

Communities

G4S encourages its colleagues around the world to invest time and energy in local projects in the communities in which they live and work – the following are examples of the types of projects supported by G4S

International Mine Action

Over the year we employed and trained 300 local staff, put 10 million m² of land back to productive use and cleared and destroyed over 100,000 items of unexploded ordnance, explosive remnants of war and ammunition.

Land acquired near the home in 2008 has now been transformed into a poultry farm – providing eggs for the children and for sale to the local community to raise further funds to meet their growing needs. Early in 2009, G4S representatives and Haile Gebrselassie, the legendary Ethiopian long-distance runner, officially opened the poultry farm in this remote area on the outskirts of Nairobi.

Malawi

Tree planting initiative

In 2007, G4S commenced a tree planting project in Malawi designed to provide 48 families from eight villages with a regular wage, fuel for their homes, food for their families and an opportunity to make a living by selling surplus produce.

Since the launch, around 75,000 acacia trees have been planted in Northern Malawi and a nursery has been established to grow seedlings for future planting and for sale to third parties.

Maize is planted amongst the fertile soils between the trees, providing an additional source of food and income for the villagers. The project, which has had a very positive impact on the local community, is set to expand in 2009 to include a further 30 families.

Mozambique

Clinic & Emergency Medical Services

G4S Mozambique has established a clinic at its offices in Maputo to provide medical treatment for staff and their immediate families. G4S Mozambique also provides two ambulances with fully qualified paramedics to transport emergency cases from their homes to hospital. In the future, it is hoped that the project can be expanded to help the many street children of Maputo as well as G4S employees and their families.

Investing in Young Sportsmen & Women Across the Globe

G4S is an international organisation with a diverse, global workforce. Uniting employees around the world in a way which is meaningful to them could be a real challenge, but we believe that we have found a way which works across the organisation.

Sport is something that everyone can relate to – it is not specific to a particular language, race, religion or gender – we don't necessarily all like the same sport, but in general terms it can engender pride and passion in individuals.

A need to create that sense of pride and passion in G4S across the world led to the creation of the G4S 4teen programme which was launched in 2007 and supports 14 aspiring young athletes from a variety of sports, based in 13 countries across Africa, Asia, Latin America and Eastern Europe.

Depending on the individual athletes' needs, this programme includes funding for additional training and coaching, or for competing in international events. In addition to sport-specific development, the programme also provides each of the youngsters with advice and support in life skills such as using modern technology and language skills development.

In some cases funds are used simply to alleviate some of the financial burden that is placed on them and their families while they strive to be the best they can be in their chosen sport and achieve their ambitions on the world's largest sporting stages.

In addition to the support provided by G4S, the young athletes also have the opportunity to learn from one of the greatest athletes of all time, who, like them has come from a background where it wasn't easy to make the most of his talents. The double Olympic gold medallist and current Marathon world record holder, Haile Gebreselassie not only inspires athletes from his own country of Ethiopia, but he is an inspiration to many outside the world of sport and across the world who have seen and been touched by his remarkable story.

Fanuel Kenosi: Sprinter, Botswana

"Since I became a member of G4S 4teen I can tell you that many parts of my life have changed. In order to be the best athlete I want to be, I took an opportunity to move to a training camp in Senegal. This was a hard decision for me as leaving Botswana would mean that I could no longer support my family. G4S has assisted with this and commenced a project to help my mother buy and run a shop. Now she can be sure that she has money for the family and she has a job that she likes very much, whilst I can attend this camp to further my career. Before I used to run in trainers, but G4S bought me my first pair of running spikes when I qualified for the Olympics. They have been brilliant."

Haile Gebrselassie: G4S 4teen Global Ambassador & global sporting icon

"As I know from the early years of my career, it is essential that young athletes receive the help and support they need to develop and succeed. Also the friendship, respect and understanding you get from other athletes and their cultures from being a member of such a team is invaluable. The level of commitment that G4S has shown to the members of the team is impressive and I am truly honoured to be able to play my part as the team's global ambassador."

ASPIRING YOUNG ATHLETES

Since the launch of the programme, each of the athletes involved with the project has achieved success in different ways and remarkably six of the 14 athletes were chosen to represent their countries in their first Olympic Games in Beijing in 2008.

The G4S 4teen project is a six year project designed to inspire G4S employees across the world and to help fourteen amazing young people on the road to achieving their dreams of winning medals and breaking world records.

Haile Gebrselassie: G4S 4teen Global Ambassador & global sporting icon

"I don't think any of us could have predicted that after the first year of the programme we would have six of the 4teen athletes having been selected to compete in Beijing. I am so proud of all of the athletes – they have all worked extremely hard and have taken the first step towards their dream of competing at the highest level throughout the world."

Pauline Korikwiang: Long distance runner, Kenya

"Before I joined G4S 4teen my days were so different. G4S has given to me more privileges that I can ever imagine. I have been to so many places and met many wonderful people. G4S is helping me with other areas of my life apart from supporting my running. They changed my school so that I can be closer to where I train and have better education. They are helping my family by building them a house. They have given me assistance with my nutrition issues which means I run so much better. They have also made me my first ever birthday cake. I now want to share this and all my experiences with others, like me, who have a dream."

Mangal Ho: Archer, India

"Without the support of G4S I wouldn't be where I am today. With the support I receive I am able to focus 100% on what it takes to be a successful archer knowing that my family and friends back home are looked after. G4S recently visited me from the UK, accompanied by a film production team from Trans World Sport which is making a number of films about the G4S 4teen project. I was honoured to host them at my village and show off the difference their support has made to me and my community."
